

COURSE DATASHEET

Semester:	2025/26/2
Course:	Research seminar VII.
Code:	PEDITNY102
Responsible department:
Department code:	DITNY
Responsible instructor:	Dr. Judit Navracsics

Course objectives:

Writing the dissertation, preparation for the mock exam.

Course content:

The Research Seminar subject (12 credits) is taught by the supervisor, and includes all activities and consultations dedicated by the PhD student and the supervisor to the research and dissertation writing, as well as the preparation of publications and conference presentations.

Requirements, evaluation and grading:

Submission of the Progress plan with the supervisor's signature.

Required and recommended readings:

Learning outcome:

The PhD student who completes the Research Seminar:

- Knows the significant and latest domestic and international literature related to their research topic, and the fundamental principles of ethical research.
- Capable of independent research, critical reading of the literature, developing their own view, and persuasive argumentation in support of their own view.
- Has a positive attitude towards research, and acts ethically both in conducting research and in writing their publications.